

NOBODY MOVE

From the National Book Award-winning author Denis Johnson, known for "Tree of Smoke," emerges the sun-soaked thriller "Nobody Move," originally featured in Playboy.

This tale unfolds in Bakersfield, California, a hotbed of lowlifes entangled in a high-stakes cat-and-mouse game over $2.3 million. Inspired by Raymond Chandler and Dashiell Hammett, Johnson's work pays homage to the American crime novel genre while injecting it with his grisly humor and unique flair.

Set in the gritty underworld, the story follows Jimmy Luntz, a small-time crook embroiled in a perilous game orchestrated by the ruthless Juarez and his menacing associates, Gambol and the Tall Man. As a simple heist spirals into chaos, Jimmy collides with Anita, a mysterious woman caught in the gang's crossfire, raising the stakes. Themes of redemption, morality, and the blurred lines between right and wrong emerge as alliances shift amidst the treacherous criminal landscape.

Amidst suspenseful encounters and violent confrontations, unexpected connections form between characters. Anita, initially a pawn, reveals surprising resilience, and Jimmy transforms into an unlikely antihero confronting his past. The narrative builds towards a crescendo at the Feather River, exploring whether one can escape the consequences of their actions.

"Nobody Move" unfolds as a sexy, suspenseful exploration of crime and morality, showcasing Denis Johnson's storytelling brilliance.
