

PRIVATE DICKS

"Private Dicks" is a darkly comic neo-noir series chronicling the turbulent journey of Sam Brown and Dick Portino, a gay couple running a detective and bail bonds agency in contemporary Los Angeles. Inspired by Elmore Leonard, John Frankenheimer, Paddy Chayefsky, and Jim Jarmusch, the show explores the transformation of classic noir icons through the lens of evolving love.

Against the cutthroat business world, Sam, a black bounty hunter, and Dick, a fiery mix of Marlowe and Wilde, form a cool, suspenseful duo, turning their relationship into a cutting-edge sitcom within a police procedural.

Entangled in kidnappings, DUI dramas, and Hollywood secrets, Sam and Dick navigate a gripping Season 1, blending past and present. As they inherit and rebrand their agency, the duo transforms from street toughs to corporate titans in a world where love mirrors the evolution of their professions. Seasons 2 and beyond delve into Sam's fixer role and Dick's corporate shift, innovatively portraying 21st-century realities.

"Private Dicks" challenges genre conventions, presenting a unique blend of noir, comedy, and drama, leaving an indelible mark on their unpredictable world.